LOAD RITE AND 5 STARR

Load Rite has been manufacturing boat trailers for more than three decades, and the 5 STARR brand has been part of the Load Rite family for over 15 years.

So what are the differences between them? And which is better? These are common questions to our staff and dealers. In truth, the two lines are more similar than different. Both share structural components and running gear and carry a great warranty. As for which is better, that's a relatively subjective question. Both are well made, high quality boat trailer lines.

Since we know the similarities between the lines, what are some of the subtle differences?

PONTOON TRAILERS

LOAD RITE PONTOON TRAILER FEATURES

The growing popularity of pontoon boats has caused this segment of our product line to expand to over 35 models that cover pontoons, tritoons, and modified deck boats.

We offer galvanized and aluminum frames in our Load Rite line. Each is standard with a heavy-duty winchstand with integral steps. These are premium trailers designed for all types of service including salt water.

In addition, we've added the EP Freshwater Series featuring a galvanized frame and silver painted wheels. The EP is perfect for a lakefront launch.

A long list of options are available for either choice: plastic bunk covers, wider bunks, LED lighting, extended center 'toon bunks for triton models. For greater versatility on EP models add a winchstand with steps and tongue jack.
